Donald Busarow (1934-2011) graduated from Concordia University, Chicago, in 1956. He continued his studies in organ and composition at the University of Michigan, The Cleveland Institute of Music (MMus) and Michigan State University (PhD). An honorary Doctor of Letters degree was conferred by his alma mater, Concordia University-Chicago for his contribution to the music of the church. He also held the Associate degree from the American Guild of Organists.

In 1975 Dr. Busarow received the appointment to the Music Department of Wittenberg University in Springfield, Ohio, where he taught theory, composition, organ and courses in church music until his retirement in 2010. He also served as University Organist, the Director of Chapel Music and the director of the Wittenberg University Choir (1982-2010).

His compositional output is centered primarily on hymn treatments including over twenty hymn concertatoes, scores of organ preludes, numerous works for organ and instruments, and choral music for church and concert choirs.
